As far as I know, the camp for the Jews from Vienna at św. Aleksandra Street 26 in Kielce was established by the Germans in the winter of 1940. In the above-mentioned camp, there were only Jews from Vienna. After two months, the Germans released them to Kielce and they could go and live wherever they wanted.

At the time when the above-mentioned camp was operational, I didn't see the Germans execute anyone.

At this point the report was concluded, read out and signed.
